Is Poor Business

EDGAR HARRIS does some calculating in his office in the West Point (Miss.) Times Leader and comes up with the following figures on taxes and the General Motors corporation:

"For every dollar the workers received the government took 83 cents and the stockholders 17 cents."

I don't guarantee Edgar's figures — but every stockholder in companies large or small knows about the relation between taxes and dividends. The corporation pays its own taxes on earnings, and then the stockholder pays his personal tax on the dividend, so that all stockholder money is taxed twice.

It is a well known fact that in the case of the poorest stockholder the total tax levied against corporation earnings is 50 cents on the dollar — and in the case of big corporations and rich stockholders the government gets from 75 cents upward — because of double taxation and the prevailing high rates of the income levy.

I don't have confirmation on the Mississippi's figures for taxes in relation to corporation wages. But even if the quoted figures are too high they spell a trend we know about, and which is dangerous for both the people and their government. Moderate rates of income tax are absorbed, but high rates are passed on to the public in the price of goods — thus jacking up the whole structure of the cost of living. Most corporation taxes are, of course, added to the selling price of the corporation's products — but as the top executives' salaries are boosted to fantastic heights to meet their personal income tax demands the added cost of these salaries also goes into the selling price of goods.

The picture that forms in your mind, therefore, is a picture of private industry operating more and more for the benefit of the government rather than for private citizens.

We excuse this in time of emergency, for war presents the problem that if we spare the horses now we run the risk of losing everything.

But it is time the people nailed down one fact for the future — that taxes in this generation present the second biggest factor entering into the cost of living, exceeded only by workers' wages... with profits almost as far down the line as they would be under a frankly socialistic state.

You don't realize this until you look at the high and sustained level of the price of goods. And what you realize then is, that piling most of the load on the big companies instead of sparing the rest of us actual yincereases our burden because of the pyramiding of taxes in the price of goods.

Heidt Troupe Coming Here Thursday

When Horace Heidt moves thru the United States with his musical revue "Stars on Parade" and his radio show the "Original Opportunity Program," the mechanics involved make a complex military operation look simple. But everything is so carefully organized before the troupe leaves the Heidt ranch in Van Nuys, Cal., that it moves like the traditional well-oiled clock.

The personnel consists of Mr. and Mrs. Heidt, their four children, a maid, and a nurse, 13 band members, the 60 Philip Morris Stars, two music arrangers, one dance director, one engineer, one production man, one stage manager, one photographer, three office staffers, two wardrobe mistresses, two chaparrones, two stage hands, one program manager, one magnolia records representative and three salesmen. This small army travels in 21 cars, and two 2½ ton trucks to carry equipment. A recent hotel room clerk reveals that they occupied 12 twin bed rooms, twelve single rooms, six double rooms and one large suite.

All the equipment required for the three hour stage show is carried with the troupe. This includes one of the finest public address systems in the country, their own lighting equipment, three large wardrobe trunks, all their production props which are carried in three prop cases, ten large garment bags for the women's clothing, photographic equipment, personal luggage, programs, music and instruments.

Quite often the troupe plays six shows a week in addition to the Sunday night broadcast, and these engagements may be 200 to 500 miles apart. So you can see no time is wasted on the road! Yet the youngsters get a big thrill out of it and believe that seeing the country is quite educational. The only problem seems to be that mail never quite catches up with them.

Tickets for reserved seats and general admission tickets, too, are on sale at the John P. Cox Drug Company and Hicks Funeral Home in Hope. Get your tickets today for The Horace Heidt show coming to Hope, Thursday night, March 15 at the indoor Coliseum.

Bell's Earnings Too Low for Investment

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's earnings for 1950 were "too low to enable the company to show an adequate return on the money invested in the business," although some improvement over 1949 was recorded, the company declared today in its Annual Report for the year.

The rate of return in 1950 was 3.58 per cent on total telephone plant and 4.85 per cent on invested capital. This compares with the record of 2.75 per cent on plant and 3.88 per cent on capital in 1949.

Dividends in 1950 were $4.50 per share — the lowest in the history of the company. Although revenues were above those of 1949, operating taxes and expenses were up still more, resulting in a decrease in the rate of return of 37 per cent.

The report explained that, unlike most other enterprises, growth in the telephone business has the effect of depressing the rate of earnings and at the same time increasing the investment to which the earnings are related. Southwestern Bell's total income has risen only 43 per cent over that of 1949, despite increases in rates and larger volume of business, while the capital put up by investors has climbed 124 per cent.

The company noted that it employed 58,300 persons at the end of the year — 20,100 men and 38,200 women. Wages and directly related costs in 1950 were $180,600,000, an amount equal to more than half of the money taken in from the sale of telephone service. These employees "are the human element whose skill, training, and experience make the equipment work smoothly and efficiently for millions of telephone users," the report said.

Southwestern Bell, with the largest payroll of any employer in its five-state territory, "Contributes to economic and personal well-being in every community in which it operates — by its expenditures for construction and maintenance, by providing jobs for people in the local community, by affording an enterprise where people may invest their savings, and by the contributions it makes to the general welfare in carrying out its obligations as a good corporate citizen," the report declared.

Turkey occupies territory in both Europe and Asia.

Kite Contest Winners Are Announced

Twenty-eight entries were made in Sunday's kite-flying contest for Cubs, Scouts and Explorers in the Hempstead District. Entries were made in seven divisions, which were judged as follows:

John Yocum, the prettiest and ugliest, Raymond Jones, largest and smallest; Granvel Speck, most unusual; and the best flying and the highest flying were judged from a light airplane flown by Walter Baber.

Bobby Jones won the trip in the plane with Mr. Baber, determined by a drawing of his number from the hat by a small girl.

Bill Wray, chairman, announced the winners were: Largest kite, all entrants in this division failed to get their kites in the air.

Smallest kite: First place, Billy Davis; second place, Ben J. Owens; third place, Billy Wray.

Prettiest kite: First place, Ben J. Owens; second place, John Owen; third place, Orville Brannan.

Ugliest kite: First place, Author Jones; second place, Freddie Jones; third place, Bobby Jones.

Most unusual: First place, Freddie Jones; second place, Billy Wray; third place, Bob Jones.

Highest flying: First place, John Owen; second place, Ben J. Owens; third place, Dale Hartfield and Bill Tooley.

Best flying: First place, Billy Wray; second place, Billy Hairr.

Awards went to first and second place winners whose kites flew as much as 30 feet high. No boy could receive more than one award although he was allowed to enter as many divisions as he wished.

Of course the usual "hard luck" stories were in evidence. An Explorer Scout who figured he had the kite that would fly the highest never did get his kite up — his string was too tight for the wind, which resulted in breakage. Another boy had a kite 50-60 feet high that he could not enter the building with it. It was nothing but rags after a few attempts at trying to attain his 30 feet. Oh, well, better luck next year.

Cold Weather Strikes Wide Area in U. S.

By The Associated

The weather over most of the Midwest today was more like the midwinter variety than the approach of spring.

As much as 22 inches of snow lay on the ground in northwestern Iowa with an average depth of from six to eight inches in the state. The snowfall was general and heavy in spots over all the northern Midwest and was continuing early today in Minnesota, Iowa, western sections of South Dakota and Nebraska and northwestern Illinois.

In Missouri and southern Illinois, on the southern edge of the storm, sleet and freezing rain snapped power and communications lines. The Missouri Power and Light company reported the storm at Hamilton in the northwestern part of the state the "worst in the history of the company." Some line poles were snapped off in that area by the weight of ice on lines.

Telephone and telegraph service in Mt. Moriah, Calaisville and Bethany, all in north central Missouri, were disabled.

Freezing temperatures were reported as far south as northern Arizona, northern New Mexico and northern Texas, and snow flurries were forecast for today over the middle great plains.

Temperatures generally were below normal over all the nation except in California and along the eastern Gulf of Mexico.

Copies of the regulation for distribution in this trade to retailers are available at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Federal Jury Starts Digging Into RFC Probe

Washington, March 12 — (AP) — A federal grand jury starts digging today into tangled dealings with the reconstruction finance corporation (RFC) in a move to uncover any law violations.

Justice department attorneys were ready to outline to the jury "certain aspects" of testimony received by a senate banking subcommittee investigating favoritism and influence in the approval of RFC loans.

The subcommittee headed by Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.) tabbed another big loan for scrutiny even as the panel of jurors came into the picture.

The Fulbright group arranged a public hearing to try to find out why the RFC approved the lending of about $6,000,000 to the Central Iron & Steel company of Harrisburg, Pa. A subcommittee report issued last month said RFC supplies the money "over the objection of all examiners and reviewers" except one, Hubert L. Steele, no longer with the agency.

The report said former Congressman Joseph E. Casey of Massachusetts was "the principal advocate" for Central Iron & Steel. The subcommittee plans to question Casey and Steele, among others.

The hearings during the last three weeks have dealt with many things — the borrowers, with middlemen, with RFC directors and Continued on Page Two

Mike Masaoka One Lobbyist Who Has No Money and Does Not Control Any Votes

By ARTHUR EDSON (For Hal Boyle)

Washington, March 12 — (AP) — It isn't a headline-making congressional hearing, of mink coats. No deep freezes. No dancing girls.

But to energetic, 35 year old Mike Masaoka, the hearing on changes in our immigration and naturalization laws is of top-flight importance. He hasn't missed a meeting of the senate and house judiciary subcommittees, and he doesn't intend to.

I thought you might be interested in Mike because he doesn't fit in the picture that usually is painted of lobbyists. Like many another person working here to influence legislation, Mike has no money to throw around — and he doesn't control enough votes to swing a single congressional election.

All Mike has is his own seemingly boundless energy, a cheerful friendliness, and he quickly points out, "a cause that is just."

Mike's cause may be better understood by looking first at Mike. The Masaoka family moved from Fresno to Utah. Everything was going along nicely until Dec. 7, 1941. That was a disaster for all of us, but it was a double disaster to Americans who looked like the enemy.

Japanese were put in concentration camps. Japanese-Americans, though citizens, were suspected of treachery. Mike was jailed nine times.

He decided the best way Japanese-Americans could prove their loyalty would be to have a fighting force of their own. The 442nd Japanese American regimental combat team was the result.

The first volunteer: Mike Masaoka. The second, third, fourth and fifth volunteers: Mike's brothers.

The combat team had a terrific record. "We helped rescue the Texans," he says proudly, "and I am now an honorary citizen of Texas."

The 442nd won medals by the bucket full. The cost was high. Its casualties ran higher than 300 per cent counting replacements.

Jet Planes in Korea Steal Spotlight

Tokyo, March 12 — (AP) — A spectacular explosion of two colliding Russian-made jet planes stole the Korean war spotlight today as ground action slowed behind retreating Communists.

The MIGs were trying to make a tight turn while chasing an American F-40 Thunderjet. They couldn't cut it fine enough, collided and exploded.

"Best damn show I've ever been on," said Lt. Arthur Walton of Bethesda, Md., one of the pilots in a flight of four F-80s attacked by 16 speedy Red planes.

The four F-80s reported they damaged four other MIG-15s in a 10-minute dogfight. That brought the bag of damaged MIGs to seven for the biggest two days of jet fighting over northwest Korea in this war.

A total of 61 MIGs in flights of 10 to 20 each — engaged U. S. F-80s and F-84s in four dogfights Sunday and today.

House Group to Work on Draft Bill

Washington, March 12 — (AP) — The house armed services committee goes to work behind closed doors today on its version of legislation to lower the minimum draft age and set up a universal military training program.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) on Saturday predicted speedy committee approval of the measure which differs in several respects from a companion bill passed Friday by the senate. Vinson said he hoped to get it before the house Wednesday and expects to see it passed before Easter.

There was threat of a delay, however, in a Republican proposal to tie on an amendment requiring congressional approval for assigning U. S. divisions to the North Atlantic pact army. This proposal, by Rep. Arends (R-Ill.) had the backing of the house Republican policy committee.

As it stands, the house bill provides for drafting youths at 18-2 years, extending military service from the present 21 months to 26, and placing universal military under supervision of a five-villan commission.

Kiwanis Club Not to Hold Regular Meet

The Kiwanis club will not hold its regular luncheon meeting Tuesday, March 13. Instead, all Kiwanians will meet at Fair park in the Coliseum on Tuesday night at 7:30 to assist in preparing the huge structure for the Horace Heidt show which will be held the night of March 15, Thursday, beginning at 8 p. m.

Every Kiwanian will be assigned a definite job to do as an usher, a concessionaire, or in some other capacity. At this work session plans will be completed for handling the tremendous crowd that is expected. A special committee, working in conjunction with local police, has been designated to handle the parking of cars.

Kiwanis officials are looking for a sellout crowd of approximately 4,000 persons. Ticket sales are expected to accelerate this week with the placing of general admission tickets on sale. The largest crowd ever to view an entertainment in the city is expected for the Horace Heidt show Thursday night.

Airforce to Call National Guard Units

Washington, March 12 — (AP) — The air force announced today it is calling to active duty in the next nine months 19 non-flying air national guard units composed of 10,000 officers and men.

The first of the guard units will be called into service within two months. The others will be brought in during the following seven months.

The air force did not disclose either the identity or the future assignments of the units.

The 19 units include eleven aircraft control and warning groups, five signal light construction companies and three communication squadrons.

This call to non-flying units is in addition to the mobilization orders that have gone out to 22 fighter and light bomber wings of the air national guard. More than half of these flying wings already are on duty, the air force said, and the remainder will be in service within a month.

The call up of the 19 units will complete the mobilization of the air national guard's aircraft control and warning groups. One such group was ordered into service several months ago.

All officers and men brought into service under today's order will serve 21 months unless the period is extended by congress.

Gas to Oakhaven Residents May Be Cut Off

Residents of Oakhaven, Ark., in the Southwestern Ground, were notified today the Louisiana Nevada Transit that natural gas service to area may be discontinued at moment.

The Louisiana Nevada Co. cited by registered letter to families living in the area had been notified by George and Vincent Foster that the gas would be sold for salvage.

In that event the company tends it will be unable to supply the area which includes 23 and several industries. All warned to make some other arrangements for fuel.

Faced with the problem of without fuel, residents of the hired counsel this morning plan to look into the legal situation.

The houses in the area were purchased in 1947 by the City of Hope and resold at exact cost. Later, a natural gas corporation brought industrial area of the ground which includes utility.

This was a group of Hope who planned to use the gas in additional industry at that time the industrial corporation has liquidated and the balance its property passed to George and Vincent Foster.

The following letter was received by residents of the area:

Dear Sir:

On March 5th, Mr. George Foster, who is an associate of Mr. Vincent Foster, called us on the telephone to inquire whether or not we desired to purchase the gas.

Leading from the terminal pipe line into the property, we advised that they had the right to sell this pipe to any gas company. I advised him that we could not justify the purchase of this pipe line as the fact that it was buried.

It could neither be salvaged nor sold as gas to the property. It would not justify the purchase.

How much notice we would give the event they sold the pipe, we advised that they had no particular period of notice, all our sales of gas were on the terms of our pipe line.

We were simply using the ground line by sufferance, each of our customers had knowledge of that fact.

This letter is written to you that service may be interrupted due to no gas which we have control and therefore, suggest that you make arrangements for gas.

Of course, he is unable to you if this line is taken over. Yours very truly, W. A. DeLoach, President.

Slavs Charge That Russia Is Trying to Overthrow Tito's Government Is Nothing New

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Yugoslav's formal charges the past weekend that Russia is preparing the anti-Tito government are not new — but not new.

The official Yugoslav white paper, issued on the subject is, of course, a grave document. It is about the most detailed document leveled at Russia since Tito was read out of the "Bolshevik fold" by the Cominform.

However, it is revealing and brings up to date a situation with which we have been conversant for some time, and it is well that we should understand we aren't faced with a fresh and unexpected crisis.

Yugoslav Foreign Minister Edvard Kardelj of Yugoslavia as far back as 1948 made a long speech before the United Nations assembly outlining this explosive situation. That was for the information of the peace organization, and Yugoslavia didn't ask for any action. A further report was made to the U. N. assembly the following year.

Take this now, I take it that the new white paper is largely for the information of the Western powers and the United Nations. Possibly the Belgrade government also feels that by this spotlighting the situation it may slow down the anti-

Yugoslav activities of the neighboring Balkan satellites.

Naturally the United Nations has been watching this situation carefully as being potentially explosive. Thus far there has seemed to be no occasion for intervention.

The break between Moscow and Marshal Tito came in '48, nearly three years ago. It was caused by his rejection of the Bolshevik tenet that Communist nations must surrender their sovereignty to Moscow.

Tito didn't reject communism altogether, however. He built himself a new line along nationalistic lines. This has become known as Titoism and has spread to the Communist parties of numerous countries, including the satellites.

This appeal of Titoism for many Communist parties has resulted in the recent widespread and drastic purges. Moscow has been carrying these out in all the satellite and has ordered the large Communist parties in France and Italy to clean house. There have been heavy cuts in doubtful membership.

Meanwhile Moscow has been harassing Yugoslavia through the neighboring satellites. The latest white paper reiterates that Russia has been applying "direct military pressure" against Yugoslavia and has been supplying the Soviet satellites with arms and troops for the overthrow of Tito's government.

The white paper declares that in the past three years there have been almost 2,000 border incidents between Yugoslavia and her eastern neighbors — Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary. Albania is charged with other incidents.

The position of course is explosive. Moreover a Balkan war almost inevitably would spread into another world conflict. A redeeming feature is that Russia doesn't want this now and so may be expected to use a restraining hand.

And it can be repeated that there is really nothing fresh to add to the existing anxiety.

used by the subcommittee of yielding to outside influence.

They also have dealt with subcommittee charges that Donald Dwyer, an aide in President Truman, and former RFC employee E. Merl Young exerted influence on some of the lending agency's directors.

Last Thursday the subcommittee asked federal investigators to study the hearings for evidence of possible perjury, tax evasion or other violations of federal law.

The next day the justice department announced plans for the grand jury inquiry. The department said only that the investigation would cover "certain aspects relating to the current RFC hearings" before the subcommittee.

Over the week-end, Rep. Keating (R-N.Y.) said he had heard that Mr. Truman had fired Merl Young's wife from her job as a White House stenographer.

At Key West, Fla., where the President is vacationing, his press secretary, Joseph Short, said Mrs. Young is still employed in the same job.

Court Bans Addition to a Town

Little Rock, March 12 — (AP) — Addition of territory to the town of Lead Hill was denied today by the Arkansas Supreme court.

Lead Hill is so located that it will be on the shore of the reservoir to be created by construction of the big multi-million dollar Bull Shoals dam in north Arkansas.

When the reservoir is filled it will inundate about half the existing area of Lead Hill.

The federal government had arranged for relocation of the town away from the area to be flooded.

John Roy Holt and others acquired 183 acres of land south of the site where the town was to be relocated. They sold lots and then petitioned the Boone county court for an annexation order. The petition was granted.

Ester A. Clark and Burl Trimble filed lawsuit in Boone Circuit court to prevent the annexation. However, the circuit court upheld the county court decision and that order was appealed to the Supreme court.

The Supreme court decision reversing the lower court's order, said that the 183 acres were not contiguous to the city property as required by state law.

Associate Justice Minor Milwee, who wrote the opinion, said the nearest point of the town of Lead Hill to the proposed addition is 3,000 feet, except for a 50-foot strip of land.

For all practical purposes, Milwee said, a half-mile gap will divide the town from the proposed annexation site.

The Supreme court's order will not affect the transfer of the city to its new location, which already has been approved by the federal government.

A child custody lawsuit involving the nephew of the late Sen. Joseph R. Robinson of Arkansas was ordered reversed and transferred to another court.

The Supreme court said Pulaski Second Division Chancellor Gux Williams was in error in not permitting Mrs. Leo D. Robinson to visit her two daughters in custody of her former husband, Joe T. Robinson, nephew of Senator Robinson.

The Supreme court added that in fairness to the chancellor of the second division as well as to the parties (in the lawsuit) the cause should be transferred to the first division. (Chancellor Frank Dodge's court for further proceedings.)

Truman Deaf to Mink Coat Affair

Key West, Fla., March 12 (AP) — President Truman turned a deaf ear today to pressure for the dismissal of a White House stenographer whose expensive mink coat figures in a senate investigation into reconstruction finance corporation loans.

The presidential quarters at this naval submarine station continued to withhold comment on the senate inquiry as Mr. Truman turned to his congressional leadership for a first-hand account of the tangled legislative picture.

He placed a long-distance call for 11 a. m. (EST). That was for his regular Monday morning "quarterback" conference with Vice President Barkley, Speaker Rayburn, Senate Leader McFarland and House Majority Leader McCormack.

The President is anxious to reverse a senate vote limiting the armed forces to 4,000,000 men and a committee resolution asserting congress should give advance approval to the sending of additional forces to General Dwight D. Eisenhower's Atlantic defense command beyond the four divisions already promised.

Meanwhile, the White House made it clear over the weekend, on two separate occasions, that dismissal of Mrs. Lauretta Young has not been under consideration.

She is the wife of E. Merl Young, the former RFC assistant

Mrs. Ambrose Also Studying to Aid Husband's Work

Stillwater, Feb. 12—When Mrs. Jack S. Ambrose watches her husband receive his Doctor of Veterinary medicine degree this spring she will be equipped to help him get off to a good start on his career.

Mrs. Ambrose is going to school, too, in Oklahoma A. & M. College's special class for wives of senior veterinary medicine students. It's a course designed to help "the little woman" learn how to be a real helpmate to her veterinarian husband.

Mrs. Ambrose and 17 other wives are learning how to keep animal records and financial books, ethics and public relations, types and uses of veterinary instruments, simple laboratory tests and other basic information.

The special one-semester class, set up under direction of Dean C. H. McElroy of the school of Veterinary Medicine, is one of the first of its kind in the nation.

Sullivan-Stephens
Nuptials Performed Sunday at Blevins

In a ceremony performed Sunday March 11 in the Bruce Memorial Methodist Church at Blevins, Miss Patricia Ann Sullivan became the bride of Harold M. Stephens.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. W. T. Spradling of Hope and Mr. Frank Sullivan of Chicago. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Stephens of Blevins.

The Rev. Cagle E. Fair performed the impressive double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with white calla lilies, snap dragons and lighted tapers against a background of southern smilax. Nuptial music was provided by Luther Hollamon of Hope. Tapers were lighted by Tom Hervey of Pine Bluff and William Routon of Hope.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin and lace ballroom length gown. She wore an illusion veil of finger tip length which fell from an original white satin cap decorated with orange blossoms made of pearls. Her bouquet was of white calla lilies.

Mrs. Elard Haden of New Orleans sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. She wore a ballerina length dress of pale blue embroidered with orange and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

After a reception in the recreation rooms of the church the couple left for a wedding trip to New Orleans after which they will be at home in Blevins.

Coming and Going
Mr. and Mrs. Owen Nix, Wanzell and Johnny, attended the Red and White football game in Fayetteville Saturday.

Mrs. Frank Johnson and Mrs. Roy Anderson of Hope left this morning on a two-week motor trip to Florida, visiting Jacksonville and other points.

DOROTHY DIX First Child

Dear Miss Dix: Why is it that there is so much excitement made over the first child, while the second, third, and so on, are always accepted as a matter of course? Before my first child was born I had the spotlight turned on me by my family and husband and was the object of all their attentions and solicitations. But now I am going to have another baby, it is just "one of those things" and nobody is much interested in it except me. I am not complaining, I am just wondering about it and cannot understand why there is such a difference in people's treatment of the mother when the ordeal is so much harder the second time, and it requires so much more courage to bear the second baby than it did the first. Can you solve this puzzling thing for me? I think it would make it easier for me if I understood.

PUZZLED MOTHER
Answer: I suppose that the reason that the first baby rates the attention, has the most fuss made over it and gets the most presents is because every first thing is in the nature of a miracle. It is something wonderful and to be marveled over because it has never happened before.

Touches Friends' Hearts
The young mother is cherished with a peculiar tenderness by her family and friends because the trailing clouds of glory of her girlhood still hang about her, and because there is something so touching and so brave in the thought of the young creature, hardly more than a child herself, going down in a hell of suffering to bring back another life, that it grips the hearts of all who know and love her.

But the feat once accomplished becomes a commonplace that calls for no beating on the drums. Drama doesn't bear repetition. The surprise and tenderness and excitement oozes out of it at a second performance. The first baby is a miracle. The second one is an achievement. After that they are just a habit.

And, curiously enough, you will find that you will take exactly the same attitude yourself toward your children. No matter how many children you have, there will never be one like the firstborn. Fortunately, a mother's heart is big enough to take all the babies that come, no matter how many they be, but she will never wait for the coming of another with the same thoughts and dreams as she did while she sewed on little garments for the first one.

Personal Mention
Charles H. Benson, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Benson, 503 S. Hamilton, Hope, has received a commission as a second lieutenant in the United States Air Force. The commission was awarded as a part of graduation exercises of Class 51 A, USAF Officer Candidate School, held March 9 at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

Private Joe Latterberry, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Latterberry, Blevins, Ark., was recently assigned to the Medical Replacement Training Center, a unit of Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas. At Medical Replacement Training Center, commanded by Colonel Howard S. McConkie, the Army's basic training school for medical service enlisted men, the soldier learns the fundamentals of medical support of patients in hospitals and troops in the field.

Answer: Screw up your courage to the point of reading the Declaration of Independence to your family and asserting your right to some privileges in the home that you help support. Tell them that unless they make friends welcome you are going to leave and set up an apartment with some other girl. Maybe when they see your money slipping out of their fingers they will treat you as well as they would a strange boarder who paid her way and more.

Either your parents are so utterly selfish that they are willing to blight your youth to save themselves from the trouble of entertaining young people and the annoyance of being kept awake at night by the coming and going of your friends, or else they are abnormally dull and stupid not to realize that not only a young girl's happiness, but also her chances of making a good marriage depend upon her being popular with the crowd. This she cannot be unless she can entertain them in her home as she is entertained in theirs.

Dear Miss Dix: What can I do with a wife who insists upon doing everything contrary to my wishes? A HUSBAND

Answer: Take the opposite point of view. If she thinks she is spiling you she will do your way. Anything to be disagreeable.

It is said that the late King George took for his guiding motto in life this truism: "The secret of life is not to do what one likes to do, but try to like what one has to do."

There may have been more thrilling and romantic legends than this but I doubt if there ever was one that contained more good hard sense, or came nearer to comprising the whole of the law and the prophets on how to be happy. For if we like what we have, we have what we like, and that is the realization of our desires, and when we learn to take what comes in life and like it, we have acquired a philosophy that protects us from all the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune.

I would particularly urge the members of my sex to paste these royal words of wisdom on their mirrors where they will see them every time they put on their complexion and their hair because, somehow, women seem constitutionally unable to make the best of hard bargain or to adjust themselves to difficult situations. Indeed they have a talent for making mountains of trouble out of molehills of unpleasantness, of letting a single flea in a glass ruin the whole of a beautiful day.

Dear Miss Dix: I have been working for five years. This brings me in contact with a number of people of my age whose friendship I want to keep, but I don't know how to do it because my parents have never allowed me to have any friends or dates or to bring any company to the house. This rule still continues, although I contribute to the upkeep of the nice home we have and am helping my brother through college. When I have a date or two with a man I am told not to let him come to the house again. I am 24 years old and I see my chances of making friends and of perhaps marrying slipping from me because of my parents attitude. What can I do?

DESPONDENT BESS

view. It was a woman you remember, who couldn't sleep because there was a crumpled rose leaf under her forty mattresses of ease.

Suffering is Needless
In the thousands upon thousands of letters that I get from women telling me of their woes, the thing that amazes me most and seems most tragical to me is that so much of their suffering is unnecessary. So many tears could be dried if they would only quit kicking against the pricks and try to get some fun out of life as they have to live it.

I get many letters, for instance, from women who are perfectly miserable themselves and who make their husbands perfectly miserable because they have to live in California while they want to live in New York, or their husband's business keeps them in Chicago when they prefer New Orleans. They tell how lonely they are in a strange place; how they long for Mother and the girls and their old bridge crowd, but they never make the slightest effort to make new friends or find new interests in the place in which they live. I have known women to live ten years in a town without ever making more than a casual acquaintance, yet all about them were people who were good and kind, interesting and cultured, and who would have brought all sorts of pleasures in to their lives if they had been given a chance.

Sometimes the unhappy woman is unmarried. She is engaged in some work that she enjoys doing and in which she is intensely interested. She gets a good salary. She has pretty clothes. She has plenty of friends and amusements. She is free to come and go as she pleases. But she feels that life is cinders, ashes and dust, because she hasn't a wedding ring.

Blind to Drawbacks
She sees plenty of unhappy marriages all about her. She sees wives supporting good-for-nothing husbands; wives with drunken husbands; wives with philandering husbands, but it doesn't make her like what she has and think she is sitting pretty on the top of the world, with her own latch key and pocket book and no man grumbling around the house.

And the wives who bewail themselves because marriage hasn't turned out to be the picnic they thought it was going to be and their husbands are not the romantic lovers they desire. They will admit that their husbands are good, kind and grand providers. But their husbands take them for granted and never tell them how beautiful and wonderful they are nor how they adore them. Hence these tears and also hence these divorces.

There are millions of women who might be happy who are miserable because they won't even try to like what they have. They won't realize that a husband can say it with beefsteaks just as truly as he can with orchids, and that a charge account at the best stores is more solid comfort than having poetry quoted to you. In a word, they try to get any happiness out of a commonplace marriage, though they would find it in peace and plenty and stability if they would only make the most of what it offered them.

And so it goes through life. None of us get just what we want, but we can all have what we like if we like what we have.

EnoughBy Westbrook Fagler

General Eisenhower's political importance as a candidate for the presidency and as an author of our political and military policy in Western Europe, calls for a sober study of his record. We know him as a "glamorous" soldier and he has been admitted without the slightest attempt by the people to discriminate between his achievements and his errors. We have accepted him as a great man because he was commander of the Western Allies who licked the Italians and the Germans. But, notwithstanding that victory, and soon after it was achieved, our country fell into the power of Soviet Russia. Soviet Russia became the master of our fate. Russia captured the initiative and has been waging a war of nerves, recently merged into the Korean hot war, ever since Potsdam. Eisenhower was partly to blame for that tragedy in our history.

It is silly to pretend to believe that Eisenhower is not a candidate for a nomination by one of the major parties. But we don't know whether he is a Republican or a Democrat. In 1948, Jimmy Roosevelt tried to nominate him over Truman. Now Tom Dewey wants the Republicans to nominate him. But Dewey himself seems not quite sure whether he is a Republican or has turned Democratic.

In his memoirs, Eisenhower wrote that he "could never possibly agree with some of Roosevelt's political acts."

That is a teaser. What kind of political acts did he disagree with? Domestic or international?

At home, Roosevelt committed "political acts" which made a radical change in the relation of the citizen to the government. The citizen lost his supremacy and became a subject of a government which grew more and more commanding and arrogant. The citizen was forced to join unions and to submit to an unofficial but terribly real autocracy. In plain fact, joining a union and submitting to degradation and financial exaction, he could wangle his way out of the draft, and thus might, in the end, save his life by the sacrifice of his political rights. It was never declared that unions were to have this power over millions of our people. That power usurped and the unions became an unofficial auxiliary of Roosevelt's ruling party. Roosevelt and the captains of the racket held vulgar swaggers when they came to Washington.

The Taft-Hartley law slightly modified the power of unions over the people and over the nation's economy but left it fundamentally intact.

It is terribly important to know unequivocally whether Eisenhower disagreed with the whole series of "political acts" which wrought this subjugation of the people who formerly were a sovereign. He should be commended and made to say:

Taft has disagreed in this phase openly, aggressively and with some success. He has been honest. Eisenhower has been evasive.

It is equally important that we evaluate Eisenhower's political wisdom and his character as revealed by his conduct in the war. Only with this knowledge can we come to a firm, fair opinion of his reliability in his present military job in Europe and, perhaps, in the presidency.

In the present situation he is placed in contrast to Taft. Taft suffers by comparison in the strong propaganda which is put up in favor of Truman's military projects in Europe, of which Eisenhower is the executor. Eisenhower is both a soldier and a politician in this current role. Taft the politician admits that he is not a soldier, but it does not follow that he is completely infantile as a strategist.

Eisenhower has tried to shrink the political responsibility for the awful mistake in military strategy which now has placed our country in the preliminary stages of another world war in which we might lose 100,000 of our sons in Europe, killed or dragged into captivity in the Soviet empire. But he was responsible.

We are drafting young men in 1951 because Eisenhower didn't fight Roosevelt and even accept dismissal from one of the greatest

Aggies to Meet
Texas Tonight

Austin, Tex., March 12 — (AP) — Texas A & M can clinch a spot in the regional NCAA basketball tournament but to do it the Aggies will have to beat the University of Texas — and an old jinx.

They haven't beaten Texas here on the Longhorns' home court in 17 years and have done it just once in the last 21 seasons.

Last week Texas A & M eliminated Texas Christian from the playoff to pick the Southwest conference representative in the regional tournament at Kansas City. Then they beat Texas, 46-33, in the best two-out-of-three games series to determine the entry.

These three teams tied for the conference championship. Conference rules called for the playoff to determine the NCAA team.

If Texas wins tonight, the third game of the series will also be played here.

Gilham Cops
District 7-W
Championship

The Gilham girls came from behind twice Saturday night to defeat Ashdown 38 to 40 for the District 7-W championship. Going into the final quarter the Gilham team trailed 40 to 44.

The all-district team included: field and head of Gilham; Terry, Stigler and Nixon of Ashdown; Hubbard, Nutt and Norwood of Mineral Springs;

Cross and Colin of Bradley; Thompson and Campbell of Nashville; Gentley of Hopewell; Emmert, Goodwin, Rodaway, Bray of Lewisville; Bromfield of Winthrop and Farrow of Foreman.

The next commander at the Battle of the Bulge in December, 1944, was General von Rundstedt.

military assignments of all time. That mistake by Roosevelt may yet destroy our nation or reduce our grand republic to a monstrous ruin. In view of the fact that Eisenhower did not oppose it, can we trust his wisdom and character now?

Eisenhower, Mark Clark, George Marshall and others, with the exception of Clay Douglas MacArthur, all seem to have been little more than puppets in the hands of the corporate and apple-polishing attitude toward Roosevelt. Their memoirs and other indications give me an impression that he dazzled them with stars for their helmets and kept them tongue-tied with the prospect of more and more glory, some of it in the light of history, plainly counterfeited.

If Eisenhower did not have serious doubts of the consequences to us he must have been a very stupid man. It is only in consequence of that plan that he is back in Congress today, asking for another generation of young Americans to redeem our folly.

We have evidence that Roosevelt was vain as who actually believed he was a great soldier and admiral. Cordell Hull wrote that soon after Pearl Harbor Roosevelt seriously asked him to resign as commander-in-chief, for President, at a state dinner, because "he relished the title."

If Eisenhower wants to be President, let him stand inspection. One Willie was enough.

JEAN ROLAND replied: "Why do you think I've been getting wrinkles lately? My friend Tim Reese up in Cedarbrook isn't interested in Jean Paul, or in women's fashions, or in money. He's interested in me, ME, my love. And if I chill him off, there'll be no more sketches and, in an unbelievable short time, no more us."

Paul Fanciera was concerned now. As usual, when he was fearful, he sought courage in phrases. "Have you no confidence in our destiny, sweet?"

"No. None without the man in the wheel chair," Jean had no use for interjections. "If I tell him I don't worship him, I may be jumping off the bridge. And one of the main problems is you can't keep from liking the guy. He's no ordinary citizen, and he didn't come by that wheel chair in an automobile accident."

"This is serious," Mr. Fanciera reasoned. "He's caught up trouble before. Now, the last you'd think he'd do is let us have our trip to Europe in peace."

But Jean was not listening. "That's a very odd little girl who keeps around the hospital."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 12 — (AP) — One thing which has run up the telephone bills for the gentle trying to pick the "at large" teams for the four-year men. At least two bright prospects were turned down because their regulars have played four seasons. And unlike North Carolina State, they didn't have eligible subs who can get by in tournament play. . . . And the committee spent a lot more time trying to find out whether other teams under consideration were in the same fix. . . . One gent even wanted to pick Indian in spite of its second place finish in the Big Ten. . . . The dining room of the Miami Beach hotel where major league baseball heads will try to settle the fate of a commissioner today is the same spot where the Florida Racing commission discussed the Don Meade case. . . . Vic Toweel, the banterweight champ, intends to head for the U. S. in May if a bout with Luis Romero for the European title in May doesn't materialize.

Playing It Safe

Iroy Simmons, versatile Syracuse coach (lacrosse, boxing and football) likes to tell about a notably rugged football game in which he took part some 22 years ago. . . . The Syracuse jacks got the edge, he officials were slightly prejudiced, especially when their little quarterback was tossed out of the game for unnecessary roughness when he tried to stop a big runner. . . . One of his teammates, a rough and ready lineman, shouted "okay, you're out of the game, you can hit him one." And the kid did. . . . The referee took the ball and started to pace off the roughness penalty (half the distance to the goal) and added yards for the punch when the same lineman yelled again: "For gosh sake somebody tackle him before he carries it over for a touchdown."

Monday Matinee

Penn State's Nick Thiel, the boss of lacrosse, is trying to develop a fibreglass lacrosse stick, which figures would be more durable than Indian-made wooden sticks. Only result is that the manufacturer, who specializes in fishing rods, has got Nick interested in fishing. . . . Lacrosse also has taken a firm hold at the U. of Virginia, where the big spring social event this year will center around a game with John Hopkins instead of a traditional baseball tussle. . . . At the same time the Virginians want you to know they have a "rough, mean" guard named Joe Palumbo working out in football and that End To McScott has been blocking viciously. . . . Dottie Grover, the all-star baton twirler from Syracuse, has been picked to make the nation-wide basketball tour with the College All-Stars and Harlem Globetrotters.

Better Watch'em

Georgia Teachers college advances a claim for the oldest baton twirler in college baseball. They're both "crackies" in college, but Fletcher J. B. Slagle of Big Stone Gap, Va., is 38 years old and former Charles Cleveland, a World War I vet, is 32. . . . If word of that gets around very far, there may be a rash of major league scouts looking for draft-proof talent.

Troillett
Shows Well
for Porkers

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Fayetteville, March 12 — (AP) — It's been a long year for the University of Arkansas, waiting for Ralph Troillett to become eligible to quarterback its football team. All last fall, while the Razorbacks were losing games as much for the lack of a clock man under their T formation as anything else, young Mr. Troillett was only a scrimmage dummy. He had transferred to Arkansas after only one year at Little Rock Junior College, so he had to carry books across the campus here for a full year before Southwest conference rules would permit him to play. But it looks as though the boy's been worth waiting for.

The Razorbacks played their first red-white spring intrasquad game here Saturday. Given a supposedly weaker line and installed as the underdogs, the Reds won, 30-27.

The Reds had Troillett on their side most of the time. He passed 14 yards to Sophomore End Wesley Huffines for one touchdown. His deceptive hand off to help Jack Troxell, speedy sophomore halfback, get through for two touchdowns.

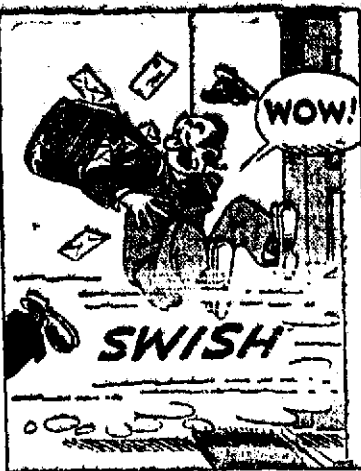

In addition to that work for the Reds, Troillett engineered one White score while on loan to that team.

Two other quarterbacks turned in performances that should help ease the wrinkles from coach Orin Douglas' brow. Senior Jim Richart, showing tremendous improvement over his first two seasons, ran for white TD's and played a steady game. Sophomore Lamar McLean turned in the best job of running from the quarterback slot in the split T.
